Transporting. Even minors who have no interest in possessing or consuming alcohol violate 138, § 34C when they drive a vehicle they know contains alcohol. The only legal exemptions for driving or, in any other way transporting alcohol (e.g., by bike, boat, or moped), are: (1) being accompanied by a parent or guardian; or (2) being at least 18 and employed to deliver alcohol. In short, someone under 21 typically commits a crime under 34C by transporting alcohol — even if the alcohol is for someone else.
